Champagne and Sparkling Wine

The winery St. Laurentius from Leiwien produces around 300,000 bottles of sparkling wine each year using the Méthode Champenoise (classic bottle fermentation). The numerous awards include the "Sparkling Wine Producer of the Year 2015" and the DLG honorary award "Best Sparkling Wine Producer 2014" for the brut / extra brut collection.

Winery St. Laurentius is also the official supplier to the court of Bellevue Palace in Berlin.

Interesting facts about wine

According to the German wine rules, wines are divided into different quality levels. The most important thing for classifying the wines is the starting must weight and the natural alcohol content as a measure of the maturity of the grapes. Some important criteria are, for example, the type of grape, the type of harvest, the type and duration of aging, the taste or the acidity.

Wines

Table wine:

The acidity of the wine must be at least 4.5 g / l, and the alcohol content must be above 8.5% vol. After enrichment, the total alcohol content may not exceed 12% vol.

Country wine:

Is an upscale table wine with an area-typical character. It is always dry or half dry, the landscape of origin must be stated on the label.

Quality wine of guaranteed origin (Q.b.A.):

Must be 100% from the region and the grape varieties approved there. It must be typical of the grape variety and area.

Predicate wine:

This is the highest quality level for wines. According to German wine rules, these wines are subject to the highest requirements in terms of type, maturity, harmony and elegance. There are six different predicates with different minimum must weights (measured in ° Oechsle):

1. Cabinet

Fine, light wines from ripe grapes with low alcohol content. The must weight should be at least 73 ° Oechsle. This makes the Cabinet the predicate wine with the lowest minimum must weight and thus the lowest predicate.

2. Late harvest

Ripe, elegant wines with a minimum must weight of 85 ° Oechsle. The grapes may only be harvested after the late harvest date set by the respective municipality. Then they must have reached the minimum value for the must weight. The addition of sugar is prohibited.

3. Selection

Top quality wines are awarded the title Selection. These wines come from selected, fully ripe and often noble rot grapes. The minimum must weight here is 95 ° Oechsle.

4. Berry selection

The predicate Berry Selection denotes full, fruity wines that are made from overripe or noble rot berries. The minimum must weight must be 125 ° Oechsle. When properly stored, good qualities can often mature in the bottle for decades.

5. Dry berry selection

Only noble rotten and raisin-shrunk berries are used here. A minimum must weight of 150 ° Oechsle is decisive for achieving the predicate. Their durability is 100 years and more.

6. Ice wine

For the production of ice wine, grapes of the quality level of the berry selection are left on the vine until they freeze in the event of permanent frost of at least -7°C. The must weight must therefore at least correspond to that of a Berry Selection.
